

“There are times when the normal rules don't apply. It might be more dangerous to be passive- it can be less risky to take risk.” - George Soros

The Hodges Funds experienced mixed relative performance in the most recent quarter as U.S. stocks advanced in defiance of an inversion in the yield curve (long-term interest rates falling below short-term interest rates) and uncertainty surrounding international trade. Although uncertainties were unsettling at times during the third quarter, U.S. stocks as measured by the S&P 500 Index managed to rally 18.54% in response to solid year-over-year earnings and low interest rates. During the final month of the quarter we also observed a market rotation into value stocks, which for the first time in a while seemed to have the upper hand on high multiple growth stocks. Despite an uplift in valuations this year, domestic stock valuations still seem reasonable relative to the current interest rate environment with the S&P 500 Index trading at 16.5X forward earnings estimates according to FactSet. This is consistent with its five-year average of 16.6X. The inverse of the current PE multiple is an earnings yield of 6.06%, compared to the 10-year treasury yield of 1.54% at September 30, 2019. If earnings expectations materialize in the months ahead, we believe the relationship between the earnings yield on stocks and interest rates indicates that the potential reward for holding stocks outweighs the underlying downside risk. Furthermore, economic growth in the first nine months of 2019 was solid and to the surprise of many investors, price multiples for most stocks have not contracted in response to manufacturing headwinds related to trade. Despite uncertainties surrounding trade with China, global economic conditions, and the U.S. political landscape, we see profits for many U.S. corporations holding up well over the next twelve to eighteen months. As a result, the investment team at Hodges Capital Management has positioned our portfolios to potentially benefit from broader economic growth and earnings improvement across a wide number of sectors. Based on the recent changes in the interest rate landscape, we believe P/E multiples for the average U.S. stock could expand modestly in the months ahead and we see further gains being supported by modest earnings growth for most of the economically sensitive sectors of the market. As a result, we see compelling investment opportunities in many of the cyclical areas of the market such as consumer discretionary, technology, healthcare, energy, and industrials.

Although the current bull market will have to overcome several unique challenges in the months ahead, we do not see the typical signs of a market peak. For instance, net inflows into equity mutual funds and ETFs have been negative over the past couple of years, which is the opposite of what usually occurs at the peak of most bull markets. Furthermore, credit markets are relatively tight and interest rates have been declining. Leadership in the equity markets during the recent rally has also reflected an expanded market breadth, which is not typical of narrow leadership at the peak of a bull market. Moreover, we are not attempting to forecast or market time interest rates, currency fluctuations, or commodity prices. Instead, we are focused on the fundamentals of individual companies and our research team is rigorously gathering and analyzing firsthand information from a broad scope of publicly traded companies. Although short-term market volatility resulting from political headlines can seem overwhelming at times, we always fall back to the idea that the long-term performance of stock prices is determined by the future earnings and cash flows of each underlying business. Investors in the Hodges Funds can be assured that we are not changing our core investing discipline, which is designed to seek out quality companies running great businesses with excellent management teams that are trading at reasonable prices. Furthermore, we see this as an ideal environment for active portfolio managers to carefully select individual stocks that we believe can generate long-term value for shareholders.

Hodges Fund (HDPMX)

The Hodges Fund's third quarter 2019 return amounted to a loss of 4.93% compared to a gain of 1.70% for the S&P 500 Index. Reflecting lagging performance in the recent quarter, the Fund's year to date performance amounted to a gain of 18.11% compared to a gain of 20.55% for the S&P 500 for the period ending September 30, 2019. Lackluster relative performance in the September quarter was mainly attributed to declining share prices among a handful of consumer related names that included online retailer, Revolve Group (RVLV), and online food ordering platform, Waitr Holdings (WTRH).

While the Hodges Fund has adapted to an everchanging investment landscape over the past 27 years, the core investment philosophy has not changed, and the portfolio remains focused on investments where we have the highest conviction. The number of positions held in the Fund at the end of the recent quarter was 40. Top ten holdings at the end of the quarter represented 45.97% of the Fund's holdings and included Texas Pacific Land Trust (TPL), Commercial Metals Co. (CMC), American Airlines Group (AAL), Twitter Inc. (TWTR), Capri Holdings (CPRI),

Eagle Materials Inc. (EXP), Cleveland Cliffs Inc. (CLF), At Home Group Inc. (HOME), Gogo Inc. (GOGO) and U.S. Concrete Inc. (USCR).

Hodges Small Cap Fund (HDPSX)

The Hodges Small Cap Fund experienced a 6.01% loss in the third quarter of the 2019 compared to a loss in the Russell 2000 Index of 2.40%. The year-to-date return on the Fund amounted to 11.78% compared to 14.18% for the Russell 2000 Index for the period ending September 30, 2019. Lagging performance in the most recent quarter reflected relative weakness in a few of the Fund’s energy and healthcare stocks. Looking ahead, we currently view the risk reward for holding small cap stocks as attractive and expect this segment of the market to potentially generate above average risk adjusted returns relative to the broader market over the next few quarters.

The Hodges Small Cap Fund remains well diversified across industrials, transportation, financial services, technology, and consumer-related names, which we believe can contribute to the Fund's long-term performance. The Fund has recently taken profits in several stocks that appeared fully valued relative to their underlying fundamentals and established several new positions that we view as having an attractive risk/reward profile. The total number of stocks held in the Fund at the end of the recent quarter was 53 compared to 51 at the beginning of the quarter. The top ten holdings at the end of the quarter represented 36.14% of the Fund's holdings and included Texas Pacific Land Trust (TPL), Commercial Metals Co. (CMC), Cleveland Cliffs Inc. (CLF), Eagle Materials Inc. (EXP), Century Communities Inc. (CCS), Brooks Automation Inc. (BRKS), NCR Corp. (NCR), Hilltop Holdings Inc. (HTH), Brunswick Corp. (BC) and Conn’s Inc. (CONN).

Hodges Small Intrinsic Value Fund (HDSVX)

The Hodges Small Intrinsic Value Fund experienced a gain 5.58% in the September quarter of 2019 compared to a loss of 0.57% for its benchmark, the Russell 2000 Value Index. As a result, the Funds year-to-date performance amounted to a gain of 19.43% compared to a gain of 12.82% for the Russell 2000 Value Index for the period ending September 30, 2019. The Fund's relative performance in the recent period was positively impacted by strength among several consumer discretionary stocks, which included apparel retailer, Tillys Inc (TLYS), and entry level homebuilder, Century Communities (CCS). The top ten holdings at September 30, 2019 represented 43.82% of the Fund's holdings and included Commercial Metals Co. (CMC), Century Communities Inc. (CCS), Brunswick Corp. (BC), Northwest Pipe Co. (NWPX), Eagle Materials Inc. (EXP), Caleres Inc. (CAL), Dixie Group Inc. (DXYN), Hilltop Holdings Inc. (HTH), Delta Apparel Inc. (DLA) and Shoe Carnival Inc. (SCVL).

Hodges Small-Mid Cap Fund (HDSMX)

For the third quarter of 2019, the Hodges Small-Mid Cap Fund's return was flat compared to a return of a loss of 1.28% for the Russell 2500 Index. On a year-to-date basis, the Fund's return has amounted to 17.89% compared to 17.72% for the Russell 2500 Index. The Fund's positive relative performance in the recent quarter was attributed a recovery in a handful of stocks, such as retailer Conn's Inc. (CONN). Top ten holdings at the end of the quarter represented 44.05% of the Fund's holdings and included Tandem Diabetes Care Inc. (TNDM), Eagle Materials Inc. (EXP), Kansas City Southern (KSU), Five Below Inc. (FIVE), Conn's Inc. (CONN), LGI Homes Inc. (LGIH), At Home Group Inc. (HOME), Owens Corning (OC), Commercial Metals Inc. (CMC) and Brunswick Corp. Hodges Blue Chip Equity Income Fund (HDPBX)

The Hodges Blue Chip Equity Income Fund experienced a gain of 3.58% in the third quarter of 2019 compared to a gain of 1.42% for the Russell 1000 Index. Year-to-date the Fund's return has amounted to 22.01% compared to 20.53% for the Russell 1000 Index for the period ending September 30, 2019. Looking ahead, we see the current investing landscape as offering plenty of attractive high-quality dividend-paying stocks with solid upside potential, as well as an opportunity for dividend income supported by corporate profits. The Blue Chip Equity Income Fund remains well diversified in companies that we believe can generate above average income and total returns on a risk adjusted basis. Top ten holdings at the end of the quarter represented 47.72% of the Fund's holdings and included Home Depot Inc. (HD), Apple Inc. (AAPL), Microsoft Corp. (MSFT), Boeing Co. (BA), Amazon.com Inc. (AMZN), Walt Disney Corp. (DIS), Caterpillar Inc. (CAT), Texas Instruments (TXN), Delta Air Lines Inc. (DAL) and Walmart Inc. (WMT).

Mutual fund investing involves risk. Principal loss is possible. Investments in foreign securities involve greater volatility and political, economic and currency risks and differences in accounting methods. These risks are greater for investments in emerging markets. Options and future contracts have the risks of unlimited losses of the underlying holdings due to unanticipated market movements and failure to correctly predict the direction of securities prices, interest rates and currency exchange rates. These risks may be greater than risks associated with more traditional investments. Short sales of securities involve the risk that losses may exceed the original amount invested. Investments in debt securities typically decrease in value when interest rates rise. This risk is usually greater for longer term debt securities. Investments in small and medium capitalization companies involve additional risks such as limited liquidity and greater volatility. Funds that are non-diversified are more exposed to individual stock volatility than a diversified fund. Investments in companies that demonstrate special situations or turnarounds, meaning companies that have experienced significant business problems but are believed to have favorable prospects for recovery, involve greater risk.

Value investing carries the risk that the market will not recognize a security's inherent value for a long time, or that a stock judged to be undervalued may be appropriately priced or overvalued.

Diversification does not assure a profit or protect against a loss in a declining market.

Fund holdings and/or sector allocations are subject to change at any time and are not recommendations to buy or sell any security.

Investment performance reflects fee waivers in effect. In the absence of such waivers, total return would be reduced.

The S&P 500 Index is a broad-based unmanaged index of 500 stocks that is widely recognized as representative of the equity market in general. The Russell 1000 Index is a subset of the Russell 3000 Index and consists of the 1,000 largest companies comprising over 90% of the total market capitalization of all listed stocks. The Russell 2000 Index consists of the smallest 2,000 companies in a group of 3,000 U.S. companies in the Russell 3000 Index, as ranked by market capitalization. The Russell 2500 Index consists of the smallest 2,500 companies in a group of 3,000 U.S. companies in the Russell 3000 Index, as ranked by market capitalization. The Russell 3000 Index is a stock index consisting of the 3000 largest publicly listed companies, representing about 98% of the total capitalization of the entire U.S. stock market. You cannot invest directly in an index. The Russell 2000 Value Index measures the performance of small-cap value segment of the U.S. equity universe. It includes those Russell 2000 companies with lower price-to-book ratios and lower forecasted growth values. The Russell 2000 Value Index is constructed to provide a comprehensive and unbiased barometer for the small-cap value segment. The Index is completely reconstituted annually to ensure larger stocks do not distort the performance and characteristics of the true small-cap opportunity set and that the represented companies continue to reflect value characteristics.
